2 CONTRACTORS ARE DELAYING SCHOOL ANNEX

Two Successful Bidders for High Addition Have Not Filed Bonds.

MUST COMPLETE BUILDING SEPT. 1

Two of the four successful bidders for contracts to erect Gettysburg's $95,000 annex to the high school are delaying final approval by the PWA, according to Superintendent of Schools Lloyd C. Keefeauver.

The technical approval of the contracts was announced some time ago relative to the awarding of the four contracts to the lowest bidders by the Gettysburg school board. The PWA had withheld approval pending the "ironing-out" of some few minor details which were immediately tended to.

Then the contractors were officially notified and were expected to file their necessary bonds within ten days. After these bonds have been filed the local school board must submit them to the PWA for final approval after which work can be started on the construction of the new addition.

Two File Bonds

However, only two contractors have filed their necessary bonds with Superintendent Keefeauver. A third is reported to have filed his bond with B. E. Starr, architect, for the school board.

Luther I. Sachs, Gettysburg, successful bidder for the federal construction contract, and B. O. Poff, of Mount Wolf, York county, who received the contract for the heating and ventilating, have filed all the required bonds with Professor Keefeauver.

The Daughin Electric company, Harrisburg, is reported to have filed all the required bonds, with the exception of its "break-down statement" with Architect Starr, about a week ago and within the past few days is said to have filed its final statement. However, official information has not reached Mr. Keefeauver on the Daughin Electric company and it is not known whether this contractor has fulfilled all his requirements.

Encounters Delay

The fourth contractor, A. R. Levan, Gettysburg, low bidder for plumbing in the annex, has not filed all his bonds and "break-down statement." Professor Keefeauver reported this morning that Mr. Levan encountered considerable delay in securing his necessary bonds. He added that he was informed, unofficially, that everything is in readiness now except the preparation of the necessary papers which will be completed this week.

When all the required bonds and statements are on file with Superintendent Keefeauver the school board will submit them to the PWA for final consideration and approval. When this is received the contractors may start work on the construction of the annex.

It is stipulated that the annex must be completed by September 1, 1936, so that the addition can be used for the 1936-37 school term.

"We must have the additional rooms to accommodate our steadily increasing enrollment," Superintendent Keefeauver said "and we are anxious to secure final approval of the various bonds and statements so that the contractors can start work as soon as weather permits."

CLAIMS WORLD TODAY FACES REAL DANGERS

Rev. George E. Snyder Asks All to Join in A Supreme Crusade.

TEXT SELECTED FROM MARK 10

"The Supreme Crusade" was the theme of the sermon delivered Sunday evening by the Rev. George E. Snyder, pastor of the Mt. Tabor United Brethren church. The text was taken from Mark 10:21: "Come take up the cross and follow me."

The sermon, in part, follows: "There is only one crusade. It is the supreme crusade of God, eternally invading the darkness, the chaos, the wretchedness of our lost world, bringing order and light and deliverance from all our woes. The whole of God's work for our salvation as well as our entire response to Him and our service to humanity as the resultant of Divine Grace, may be thought of in terms of the supreme spiritual crusade for Christ.

"We all love romance, adventure. We delight to turn the pages that record the great crusades of the middle ages. We are thrilled when we read about those great heroes. Their names send us shudders with undying lust. Glorious chivalry, breath-taking pageantry, flaming enthusiasm, heroic adventure, black treachery, the agony of defeat, the delirium of victory, the thundering ride of the four horsemen—war, famine, pestilence, death—is there no value in all this history except to amuse us when we have an idle hour to while away? They shame us who live the slack and selfish life, when the supreme crusade of God is calling, calling.

"Those crusades belong to the past. For the most part they were pathetically misguided, and ended in ignominious failure. We have no interest in them except to learn their lesson. They help us in a fresh approach to our own problems. There is a supreme crusade going on right now. Have we enough imagination to see how God is invading the chaos and darkness of greed, of lust, of heathenism and brutal stupidity that enslaves and destroys our modern world? Have we the faith to believe God when He tells us that the one great important thing about us is whether or not we are with Him in His supreme crusade? Does it mean anything to us when through His Son Jesus Christ He challenges, 'Come take up the cross, follow Me'?

"The early crusaders sought to possess the empty tomb of Christ and recapture the Holy City. The supreme crusade seeks to make us possessors of the living Christ and bring us into the Heavenly Jerusalem. The early crusaders fought the Turk to rescue their brethren from bondage, outrage, and all manner of vile atrocity. But we fight under the banner of God against Satan and his allies, the master spirits of this dark world, to rescue all mankind. (Continued on Page Two)

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDST V. A.

Court Rules It Can Sell Its Surplus Power Manufactured at Wilson Dam.

Washington, Feb. 17 (AP)—The government won a major victory in the Supreme court today when the nine justices held the TVA could dispose of surplus power manufactured at Wilson Dam, at Muscle Shoals, Alabama.

Chief Justice Hughes handed down the detailed ruling before a crowd of prominent lawyers and members of congress at one p. m.

Only power from Wilson Dam had been sold by the TVA. The justices held that federal disposition of power was a question for congress to answer, not the courts. The court upheld the right of the government to dispose of all surplus power made at dams intended to promote navigation or aid national defense.

The government owned the property said Hughes, and there was nothing in the constitution to limit the government's disposition of the power.

The general purposes of TVA it was decided presented "no justifiable question." The Tennessee river is a navigable stream," said Hughes, developing the thesis that the constitution reposed powers over navigation in the federal government.

The court, by its decision, upheld a contract for sale by the Alabama power company of transmission lines to the Tennessee Valley authority.

The court limited its decision to the case before it. The right of the government to seek wider markets for power than was provided by the Alabama power company stands up.

Some of the power produced by the federally-built dams is used by the government.

"Surplus power" is that not needed by the government. Although the decision was unanimous Justice Brandies, Cardozo, Roberts and Stone presented a concluding opinion saying the case should have been dismissed.

To Hold Rudisill Inquest Thursday

The inquest into the death of John Z. Rudisill, 61, White Hall, will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the scene of the fatal accident near Two Taverns, according to an announcement by Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Adams county coroner, this afternoon.

Rudisill, a rural mail carrier from the Littlestown post office, was fatally injured when he was crushed against the rear end of his auto by the car of Henry Cordes, West Lincoln avenue. The accident occurred on the morning of February 5 near Two Taverns. Mr. Rudisill died about seven hours later in the Annie M. Warner hospital here from a fracture of the back, a fracture of the pelvis and other injuries.

Dr. Miller said that he has not yet selected the jury to hear the case.

BLIND AND AGED OF COUNTY MAY RECEIVE U. S. AID

State May Be Able to Negotiate Assistance Without New Legislation.

MANY HERE TO BE BENEFITED

Persons in Adams county who have been receiving state assistance from old age or blind pension funds and through the mothers' assistance board may be eligible for federal aid without new state legislation. That possibility was seen after a conference of social security board officials and a state delegation.

Approximately 250 persons have been receiving old age pensions in this county. Many others are on the waiting list and may be eligible for assistance if the federal funds become available.

Miss Margaret McMillan, Adams county Red Cross secretary, said today that 26 persons have been receiving blind pensions and that there are 16 on the waiting list. She has been told, she stated, that the county's blind pensioners have already been approved for federal aid. An effort will be made to have the 16 additional cases placed on the list for pensions.

Aid 12 Families

The mothers' assistance board is now helping 12 families with 16 others on the waiting lists. Miss McMillan stated that the federal act is expected to make the 16 additional families eligible to receive the government funds.

Under the terms of the federal act, the state law must conform in all provisions before the federal government can match state payments for old age assistance. This also applies to the mothers' assistance program, blind aid and unemployment insurance.

Pennsylvania's old age Pensions act differs from the federal act in that it requires 15 years' residence and citizenship. The federal law stipulates no United States citizen may be excluded and only five years' residence in the preceding nine years is required.

If additional state funds could be found to care for those persons coming within provisions of the federal law but not the state law, it was said this problem might be solved without action by the legislature.

In connection with the mothers' assistance program, it was said the fact that eight Pennsylvania counties are not cooperating stands as a barrier to the state's participation in the federal program. The eight counties are Beaver, Clearfield, Elk, Fayette, Forest, Fulton, Perry and Pike.

Trooper investigators are to assemble at the capital Tuesday morning and two men will be assigned to each institution. The inquiry will be directed by the governor, Dr. J. Evans Shelly, secretary of welfare; Ira McCloskey, of the state bureau of corrections, and John Figel, senior prison inspector.

The young mother of four children took two bi-chloride of mercury tablets at her home Sunday evening and collapsed. The Gettysburg ambulance was called and she was rushed to the hospital.

Epley Wants to Purchase Plow to Clear All Streets

Following receipt of appeals from many residents on side streets of Gettysburg that the main thoroughfares be cleared of the heavy snows, C. W. Epley, president of the borough council, today announced that he will ask town council to purchase a snowplow to attach to the front end of a borough truck to be used in clearing side streets.

"I will appreciate hearing from our residents relative to the purchase of such a snowplow. I want to hear from all our residents whether or not they favor such an expenditure of money. I believe the plow can be purchased for about $200. All a resident need do is address a penny post card to me expressing his or her sentiments in the matter and I will bring the question before a special session of council if necessary," Mr. Epley explained.

The side streets afford one-way traffic only, in most sections of town and many residents are appealing to council to help them out of this situation. Today enrollees from the two C. C. camps on the battlefield were busy clearing snow from the main streets of town. They will assist the borough in this capacity until the main streets are cleared or until they are able to reach their regularly approved field projects.

"I am anxious to do everything I

Two tablets are sufficient to prove fatal and the fact that the young woman had not retained both tablets is a factor in her favor and her chances for recovery are better today, physicians said.

The poison tablets usually cause a destruction of the kidney cells and suppress proper and normal functioning of those organs thus causing death. The poison works slowly and it may be several days before physicians are able to determine whether the poison will be fatal.

At the hospital Mrs. Moser was unable or refused to tell attendants why she attempted to end her own life. She was asked if she had been drinking to which she replied "I must have been crazy."

Her husband also was unable to give any reason for the action of his wife.

Dismisses Appeal

An opinion of the court was handed down this morning on the commonwealth's motion to dismiss the appeal of the Littlestown National bank, executor, from the appraisal of the estate of Louisa E. Miller, late of Littlestown, for inheritance tax purposes. In the opinion Judge Shelly dismissed the appeal at the cost of the estate.

In an order of court handed down this morning by Judge Shelly, Lloyd W. Kuhn, Bendersville, receiver for the Fruit Growers' hall company of Adams county, was given authority to sell at public sale the real and personal property of the company after proper publication in two county newspapers. The sale will be held on Mar. 14 at the company's hall in Bendersville. An inventory and appraisal filed with the court showed that the company has real estate valued at $1,000 and personal property to the amount of $86.35. Obligations of the company are listed at $257.66.

On petition of 23 taxpayers of the Union Independent school district, two school directors for that district were named by the court. The petition was presented by Edgar K. J. HOWARD COOK FINED $300 ON ASSAULT COUNTS

Hilltown Man Must Pay $417.22, Including Costs on 4 Charges.

ROBERT MILLER GETS SIXTY DAYS

J. Howard Cook, Hilltown, was sentenced this morning by Judge W. C. Shelly in Adams county court to pay fines totalling $300 and the costs on two charges of aggravated assault and battery.

Sentence was suspended by the court on two charges of assault and battery on condition that Cook pay the costs and all the hospital and doctors' bills involved in the cases.

Cook had been convicted at the January session of criminal court on the four counts of assault and battery. The same jury had acquitted him on a charge of felonious assault and battery.

In passing sentence this morning Judge Shelly said that he had carefully investigated the case and had learned that Cook bore a good reputation in his community. The judge said "it is time for everyone in Adams county to learn that firearms cannot be used except in extreme cases and where there is a real reason for their use."

$417.22 In Fines, Costs

Cook's defense was that he was trying to scare Robert Noel and William Lentz, Hilltown youths, away from his fence on the night of November 5 and that he had not intended to injure them. Cook claimed that he did not know that he had no right to shoot under the circumstances. He was told by the court that he was very fortunate that the jury had not convicted him upon the count of felonious assault.

Cook's fine and costs in the cases amount to $417.22. That sum includes a part of the costs in a case of malicious mischief in which Cook was the prosecutor. The case was ignored by the grand jury last month and the costs were placed on Cook who had laid the charges against Noel and Lentz for allegedly tampering with a wire fence on his farm.

Jail Sentence

Robert P. Miller, West Middle street, was sentenced to the county jail for a period of sixty days and ordered to pay the costs of his case. Miller had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of drunken driving after being arrested by local police on Chambersburg street on the evening of December 26, 1935.

Miller told the court that this was his first offense on that charge. He was given the same sentence as was imposed on two other men who appeared for sentence on similar charges last month.

Miller was given the privilege of applying for a parole within thirty days as were the other two defendants last month.

Mrs. Alta Hoffman, Gettysburg, was placed on parole for a period of one year on condition that she leave the county and not return. She is to return to the home of her parents in Mt. Airy, Md. Mrs. Hoffman was sentenced to one year in the county jail last August on a charge of resisting an officer.

HEAD OF HUDSON
AUTO FIRM DIES

Pneumonia Is Fatal to Roy D. Chapin Former Secretary Of Commerce.

Detroit, Feb. 17 (AP).—Roy D. Chapin, at 55 years old a pioneer of the automobile industry and a former Secretary of Commerce under the Hoover Administration, died Sunday of pneumonia in Henry Ford hospital.

Mr. Chapin, president of the Hudson Motor Car Company since 1910, had been ill only since last Monday, and his death came suddenly late Sunday.

Reared at Lansing, Michigan, Mr. Chapin became associated with the automobile industry while still a youth. It was while he was a student at the University of Michigan that a casual mention of his hobby, photography, to R. E. Olds, head of the Oldsmobile Company, turned his career into the industry.

Sales Manager At 24
Chapin left school immediately to take a job with Mr. Olds the following Monday. His ability as a photographer took him into the promotional division of the business, and then to the sales department. He became manager of the Oldsmobile company at the age of 24.

After two years as manager of sales for Olds Mr. Chapin undertook the organization of the E. R. Thomas-Detroit Company, with E. R. Thomas, of Buffalo; Howard E. Coffin, F. O. Bezner and J. J. Brady. Their produce sold for $2,750.

Not content with this organization, Mr. Chapin undertook, in the midst of his success, to organize a new firm with Coffin, backed by Hugh Chalmers. In 1908 the ed, with Mr. Chapin as general manager.

Became Head Of Company In 1910
He organized the Hudson Company, with J. L. Hudson as president, in 1909, but a year later Mr. Chapin took over direction of the company he was to head for the remainder of his career.

Until 1932, when Mr. Chapin was named Secretary of Commerce by President Hoover to succeed Robert P. Lamont, his attention had been devoted entirely to the automobile industry.

Shibe, President
Of Athletics, Dies

Philadelphia, Feb. 17 (AP).—Thomas Stevenson Shibe, for fourteen years president of the Philadelphia Athletics, and long regarded as a leader in American League councils, died Sunday night. He was 70.

He died as a result of a heavy cold with which he had been afflicted since shortly after the major league meetings in Chicago last December. He had also suffered from a complication of diseases and a heart condition for years.

He had been brought home only a short time from Florida after his cold became worse there, while he was on his regular winter vacation. He was removed from his home to a hospital recently.

Baseball in general and the American league in particular had Tom Shibe to thank for a lot.

It was Shibe, then vice-president of the club, who joined the group which put the American league into the major league field in 1901. In fact, Shibe was one of the last remaining members of the pioneers instrumental in making big-time baseball a two-league affair.

U. S. TO FIGHT RULING
FAVORING WAR VETERANS

Washington, Feb. 17 (AP).—Estimating that at least 8000 Philadelphia needy would have to be dropped from WPA employment to give jobs to war veterans not on relief, WPA officials insisted they would "fight all the way" an impending court decision ordering preference for veterans.

As soon as Federal Judge George A. Welsh enters his decision on the court records, probably tomorrow, the United States district attorney at Philadelphia will ask that its effective date be postponed. If the government motion is rejected an immediate appeal will be taken to the circuit court of appeals.

Prolonged court battle was indicated by the statement of H. Eugene Gardner, attorney who brought the action, promising the case would be carried to the supreme court "if necessary."

McLAGLEN AND
YOUTH FEATURE
MAJESTIC FILM

Victor McLaglen, one-time British officer and Privy Marshal of Baghdad, during the world war, appears in one of his favorite roles in "Professional Soldier," the attraction at the Majestic theatre tonight and Tuesday.

Paired with McLaglen, and sharing equal honors, is Freddie Bartholomew famous juvenile star who divides his time as a King, an abducted sovereign and a "campaigner" with McLaglen.

The picture gives McLaglen an opportunity to demonstrate his soldierly acting capabilities as well as portray his "soft-hearted" feelings for a youngster whom he is employed to kidnap to successfully promote a revolution.

McLaglen's typical enactment of a soldier of fortune, a one-time Marine Colonel, and his daring exploits which he had previously factiously revealed to the King as a bedtime story furnish exciting moments in the presentation.

McLaglen's handling of a machine gun so moves the King as to bring the coveted honor of the small monarchy and his promotion to the rank of a General with his breast full of medals.

"Professional Soldier" is rated amusing entertainment replete with thrills.

STOCK REPORT
New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—A buying wave in utilities swept the stock market today as the supreme court handed down the TVA decision, and blocks of 3,000 to 10,000 shares changed hands at advances of fractions to nearly 3 points.

So great was the rush to acquire the power issues that the ticker tape at one time dropped five minutes behind floor trading while board rooms groped to determine the extent and force of the rise.

Senator Clarke
Is Fined $4,000

Harrisburg, Feb. 17 (AP).—Senator William H. Clarke, Chester county, was sentenced today to pay a fine of $4,000 and costs for attempted bribery and extortion.

Judge William Hargest said no jail sentence was imposed because of Clarke's physical condition. The court said six doctors have said Clarke "is suffering from a serious heart ailment and that a prison sentence would endanger his life."

A short time after sentence was passed Clarke filed an appeal to the superior court. Five thousand bail was fixed.

AMPUTATE LEG
OF AGED CLOWN

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 17 (AP).—Cho Cho, the circus clown, who made the world laugh for fifty years, will clown no more.

Surgeons amputated his right leg Saturday because of a threatened artery obstruction. His condition was reported serious.

In real life Cho Cho is William H. Lea, 73. Until his retirement a few years ago he was perhaps the peer of all circus clowns. He toured the world a dozen times. He even refused to stop clowning when he became too old to jump through paper hoops and tumble about the circus ring.

To millions of children Cho Cho became a health clown. For years he made special appearances before assembled youngsters, using funny antics to impress them with the value of proper diet and sturdy bodies.

Billy Rose's "Jumbo" big show in the New York Hippodrome, lured him out of retirement. He joined a troupe of yesteryear's circus stars there. Once more he cavorted in the sawdust ring.

But the mark of years suddenly appeared. In pain, he returned to his suburban home here.

Dr. Benjamin W. Black strove to avoid the amputation but decided there was no alternative.

ACCUSED OF ATTEMPTING FRAUD ON LONG'S WIDOW

Philadelphia, Feb. 17 (AP). — George Shoemaker, of Lancaster, was held Sunday night for a hearing before a United States commissioner, charged with using the mails to defraud in connection with a "racket" which postal inspectors said listed at least one United States Senator among its intended victims.

Inspectors said the "racket" had to do with bills for alleged fake printing work sent to heirs or executors of the estates of persons recently dead.

One of the intended victims, authorities said, was Senator Rose McConnell Long, widow of Huey Long, of Louisiana. She received a bill for more than $400, and when a check of her husband's books failed to disclose the account she turned the bill over to Federal authorities.

Bicycles which can be taken apart and new parts substituted in a few minutes with the aid of a monkey wrench are being marketed by a British company.

BLAST WRECKS
2 HOMES; 4 DIE

Two Men and Two Women. One Eighty Years of Age. Expire in Detroit.

Detroit, Feb. 17 (AP). — Firemen recovered the bodies of four persons, two men and two women, from the wreckage of two homes in suburban River Rouge Sunday after a gas explosion. Investigators said they believed all of the victims were dead of asphyxiation before the blast occurred.

The victims were identified as: William Beeching, 53, engineering works employee.

Beeching's 80-year-old mother. Fred Corn, 32.

Mrs. Etha Longnecker Corn, 32. Firemen said the explosion apparently originated in the Beeching home, the walls of which were blown away, allowing the roof to drop to the ground.

Wall Hits Second House
One wall of the Beeching house was blown against the Corn house, adjoining it.

All of the victims were clothed in sleeping garments, firemen said, and apparently were dead or unconscious before the blast. A rescue squad unsuccessfully tried to resuscitate the Corns, but said they believed both had been dead several hours.

It was necessary for a wrecking crew to raise the roof of the Beeching home before the bodies of Beeching and his mother could be taken from the ruins.

The Corn's home appeared little damaged on the outside, but interior walls were cracked, windows smashed and fixtures torn loose. Dr. Harvey S. Broderson, River Rouge health officer, who examined the bodies, said he believed the Corns died either from asphyxiation or concussion. Their bodies were in bed and unmarked.

Two Children Imperiled
Windows for several blocks around were smashed by the concussion, and two doors from the Beeching home two children of Frank (Buck) Weaver, River Rouge high school athletic coach, were showered with glass but uninjured. Mrs. Weaver, in the home also, likewise was uninjured, but said she was badly shaken by the blast.

Senate Votes Fund
For Bonus Payment

Washington, Feb. 17 (AP).—The senate passed an appropriation bill carrying $2,609,751,905 including $1,730,000,000 to pay the bonus and $879,751,905 to run the independent offices of the government in the next fiscal year.

The measure, which now goes back to the house for action on the bonus amendment carried one of the largest of peace-time appropriations for the combined regular and emergency expenditures of government departments.

U.S. to Accept Boulder Dam
Two Years Ahead of Schedule

Boulder City, Nev., Feb. 17 (AP).—The United States Government in two weeks will take over the big chunk of concrete that tamed the bad river of the West—the canyon-digging Colorado.

Boulder Dam and its power house are finished by its contractors, the Six Companies, more than two years ahead of schedule.

The bid on it was $48,890,995, but the contractors will receive approximately $51,950,000, because of contract changes. A penalty clause of $3,000 a day for failure to complete the work within seven years spurred immediate action after signing the contract, April 20, 1931.

Biggest Job Since Canal
Hydraulic engineers proudly pointed to the job as the biggest one since General Goethals dug the Panama Canal.

The Colorado river gashed the biggest chasm in the earth—the Grand Canyon—and yearly carried more silt than the total excavation of the Panama Canal. So great was this movement that it drove back the Sea of Cortez a couple of hundred miles, creating the Imperial Valley of California and Mexico. Then it built up the river bed with silt and menaced the 100,000 valley settlers with floods.

2 BANDITS LOOT
HOTEL OF $1,200

Hotel Traylor, Allentown. Scene of Daring Holdup Sunday Night.

Allentown, Feb. 17 (AP). — Two bandits walked into the Hotel Traylor early Sunday evening and held up the desk clerk, Fred Clemson, and got away with upwards of $1,200 and some checks of an undetermined value.

The two walked into the lobby office of the hotel as a nearby radio was unfolding a mystery drama. Clemson was counting his money preparatory to going off duty when the pair came in. He swung the register for the pair to sign, thinking they were incoming guests.

"I looked down and there was a 'cannon' looking at me," said Clemson. The taller of the two who had a strip of adhesive plaster over his upper lip, sat on the desk and swung himself around to get back of it, telling his companion to "take care of the others."

The latter drew a revolver and covered Thomas Reed, a bellhop, Clifford Jacobs, the elevator man, and Charles Bierbaugh, a local theater manager and a resident of the hotel.

The man behind the desk gathered in $60 which Clemson had been counting and then asked "where do you keep your money?" Clemson replied that it was in the safe but he had no key to open the safe.

"Open the safe if you want to eat any more meals?" was the warning from the robber. Clemson then took the big fellow to a rear office and opened the safe and began taking out the boxes containing the money taken in by the clerks and cashiers, each having a separate box.

The bandit took five boxes from the safe, overlooking another which contained considerable money. The tall fellow called his companion and the two walked out with the five boxes.

O. W. Badger, of Boston, at this time strolled through the corridor and was herded with the bellhop, the elevator man and the theater manager.

It all happened so quietly that several score guests in the coffee room adjoining the lobby didn't know a thing about it until it was all over and Edna O'Donnell, the coffee shop hostess was asked by Clemson to call the police. No one could tell how the two made their getaway from outside the hotel.

kind from the slavery of sin, the outrages of injustice, the vile atrocities perpetrated upon human souls and bodies by the forces of evil.

"The crusaders lived in an age of blind unreasoning faith, because they lacked the guidance of an open Bible in the language of the common people. The supreme crusade comes to us in our present age of disillusionment, break down of traditional religious control, moral chaos, and consequent suffering and world-wide depression. But it brings us an open Bible and a living Christ who plainly declares the true will of God, that all men should be saved, offers us grace adequate to our every need, corrects our wild unworthy notions of God and enables us to discern the infallible proofs of Bible truth."

"The old crusaders marked themselves with the sign of the cross, but alas like we they were too often ignorant of its true meaning. Until we manifest a superior devotion it becomes us to despise those ancient followers of the Cross. Our task is to improve upon their following by a more genuine obedience to Christ."

"The old crusaders suffered overwhelming defeat because they were outside the will of God. They were guilty of race prejudice, jealousy, greed, ungoverned lust and rage. They were divided, they were weakened by a mob of hangers-on camp followers, and false friends who betrayed them. The true crusade must learn from their mistakes, in this day of too much senseless division, rivalries, lukewarmness, too many who just hang on."

"We ought to ask for courage as we ask for our daily bread. We need even greater courage than that of the crusaders of old, more dangerous foes to face. It takes courage to trust in the sword of the spirit which is the word of God and the shield of faith, it takes courage to reconstruct business so that justice shall be done to all. Our victories shall be won if our faith rests upon the impregnable rock of divine truth."

THE BOOMERANG CLUE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS: Bobby Jones and Frankie Davenport are extracting information from Moira Nicholson which makes them think that after all Moira's husband, not Roger Bassington-French, murdered Alan Carstairs. Frankie is a guest at the Bassington-Frenches, and Bobby is pretending to be Hawkins, her chauffeur. Still, there is the matter of the changed photograph which still points toward Roger. Moira asks, unexpectedly, why they don't ask Roger himself about it.

Chapter 28

FRESH START

For a moment the bold simplicity of the question quite took their breaths away. Both Frankie and Bobbie started to speak at once.

"That's impossible—" began Bobby, just as Frankie said "That would never do."

Then they both stopped dead at the possibilities of the idea sank in. "You see," said Moira eagerly, "I do understand what you mean. It does seem as though Roger must have taken that photograph. But I don't believe for one moment that he pushed Alan over. Why should he? He didn't even know him. They'd only met once—at lunch down here. They'd never come across each other in any way. There's no motive."

"Then who did push him over?" asked Frankie bluntly.

A shadow crossed Moira's face. "I don't know," she said constrainedly.

"Look here," said Bobby. "Do you mind if I tell Frankie what you told me? About what you're afraid of?"

Moira turned her head away. "If you like. But it sounds so melodramatic and hysterical. I can't believe it myself this minute."

And indeed the bald statement, made unemotionally in the open air of the quiet English countryside, did seem curiously lacking in reality.

Moira got up abruptly. "I really feel I've been terribly silly," she said, her lip trembling. "Please don't pay any attention to what I said, Mr. Jones. It was just—nerves. Anyway, I must be going now. Good-bye."

She moved rapidly away. Bobby sprang up to follow her, but Frankie pushed him firmly back.

"Stay there, idiot, leave this to me."

She went rapidly off after Moira. She returned a few minutes later.

"Well," queried Bobby anxiously.

"That's all right. I calmed her down. Now that you're not hampered by her being here, tell me all about it."

Bobby did so. Frankie listened attentively. Then she said:

"It fits in with two things. First of all, I came back just now to find Nicholson holding both Sylvia Bassington-French's hands—and didn't 'look daggers' at me!"

"What's the second thing?" asked Bobby.

"Oh, just an incident. Sylvia described how Moira's photograph had made a great impression on some stranger who had come to the house. Depend upon it, that was Carstairs. He recognizes the photograph. Mrs. Bassington-French tells him that it is a portrait of a Mrs. Nicholson, and that explains how he came to find out where she was. But you know, Bobby, I don't see yet where Nicholson comes in."

"You think it was he and not Bassington-French? Rather a coincidence if he and Bassington-French should both be in Marchmont on the same day."

"Well, coincidences do happen. But if it was Nicholson, I don't yet see the motive. Was Carstairs on the track of Nicholson as the head of a dope gang? Or is your new lady friend the motive for the murder?"

"It might be both," suggested Bobby.

"Now that is a possibility," said Frankie. "But the first thing is to make sure about Roger Bassington-French. The only thing we've got against him is the photograph business." If he can clear that up satisfactorily—

"You're going to tackle him on the subject? Frankie, is that wise? If he is the villain of the piece it means that we're going to show him our hand."

"Not quite—not the way I shall do it. If he can explain the photograph then he may be a very valuable ally."

"How do you mean, Frankie?"

"My dear, your little friend may be an emotional scaremonger who likes to exaggerate, but supposing that her husband really wants to get rid of her and marry Sylvia. Don't you realize that in that case, Henry Bassington-French is in mortal danger too? At all costs, we've got to prevent his being sent to the Grange. And at present, Roger Bassington-French is on Nicholson's side."

"Good for you, Frankie," said Bobby quietly. "Go ahead with your plan."

Frankie got up to go, but before departing she paused for a moment. "Isn't it odd?" she said. "We seem somehow to have got in between the covers of a book. We're in the middle of someone else's story. It's a frightfully queer feeling."

"I know what you mean," said Bobby. "There is something rather uncanny about it. I should call it a play rather than a book. It's as though we'd walked onto the stage in the middle of the second act, and we haven't really got parts in the play at all, but we have to pretend, and what makes it so frightfully hard is that we haven't the faintest idea what the first act was about."

Frankie nodded eagerly. "I'm not even sure it's the second act—I think it's more like the third. Bobby, I'm sure we've got to go back a long way. . . . And we've got to be quick because I fancy the play is frightfully near the final curtain."

"With corpses strewn everywhere," said Bobby. "And what brought us into the show was a regular cue—five words, quite meaningless as far as we are concerned."

"Why didn't they ask Evans?" Isn't it odd, Bobby, that though we've found out a good deal, and more and more characters come in to the thing, we never get any nearer to the mysterious Evans?"

"I've got an idea about Evans. I've a feeling that Evans doesn't really matter at all—that although he's been the starting point as it were, in himself he's probably quite unessential. It will be like that story of Wells' where a prince built a marvellous palace or temple round the tomb of his beloved. And when it was finished there was just one little thing that jarred. So he said, 'Take it away'—and the thing was actually the tomb itself."

"Sometimes," said Frankie, "I don't believe there is an Evans."

Saying which she nodded to Bobby and retraced her steps towards the house.

An Evening Thought

Blessed are they who have the gift of making friends for it is one of God's best gifts. It involves many things, but above all, the power of going out of one's self and appreciating whatever is noble and loving in another.—Thomas Hughes.

Out of the Past

Happenings of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times the files reveal.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO
The "Philomathean Society" of Pennsylvania college celebrated their fifth anniversary in the Presbyterian church, on Friday last. After a prayer by Rev. J. C. Watson, appropriate addresses were delivered by J. Macfarlane, F. Springer and J. L. Fuller, Esq. The music of the band, under the direction of Mr. Hardt, was admirable. The audience was very numerous and attentive.

It is with pride and pleasure that we recognize, in yesterday's message from the President of Congress, the evidence of the triumph of wise counsels in our government. The very form and manner of the message distinguish it from the elaborations of the lower cabinet, and show it to be the work of the Constitutional advisers of the Executive. The President has yielded his own opinion to the unanimous opinion of his cabinet. In doing so he has acted magnanimously; whilst, by the firmness and union of their counsels, his cabinet proper deserve honor and gratitude from the country.

We take no exception whatever to the terms of the message. When the honor or the independence of the Nation are in any way concerned, we shall be among the first to desire to see them vindicated, and do not object, therefore, to see them guarded as the President says they have been in the acceptance of the mediation. And as to the improvement of the defenses of the Nation, fixed or floating, we are in favor of it, to a reasonable extent, as a part of true national policy, dependent for its justification, not on external circumstances or contingencies, but upon its intrinsic wisdom.—Id.

The Indian war, in the South, still continues to an alarming extent. Large bodies of troops are marching from the neighboring states to the scene of action. Poor, ill-fated Indian! Nothing but extermination will quench thy proud spirit, and make thee forget thy oppressions.

Married: On the 11th inst., by the Rev. Mr. Gutelius, Mr. Adam Durscham to Miss Sophia Jackel, both of Gettysburg.

On the same day, by the same, Mr. John B. Jones, of Reisterstown, Md., to Miss Caroline Dysert, of Adams county.

The Governor has signed the Bank Bill.

An arrival at New York brings information that FRANCE HAS ALSO ACCEPTED THE MEDIATION OF ENGLAND.

(Adv.) Sheriffalty. George W. McClellan returns his sincere thanks to his friends, and the public generally, for placing him on the return with the present sheriff, at a former election, and respectfully solicits their votes and interest for the sheriff's office at the ensuing election. Should he be honored with their confidence by being elected to that office, no exertion shall be wanting on his part faithfully to discharge the duties of that important trust.
Gettysburg, Feb. 1, 1836.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
The most aged person in this town and we presume, in the County, died on Sunday morning at the residence of one of her descendants, Mr. Henry Meals, in this place. Her age, it will be observed in the obituary notice, was over 98 years. How few attain so great an age! What a variety of incidents, of pleasure and of sorrow have fallen to her lot in her protracted life! What changes has she seen both in the world around her and in the circle of her friendships, during her long pilgrimage on earth!

Married: On the 22d inst., at the Ev. Lutheran parsonage, Littlestown, by the Rev. S. Henry, Mr. Hezekiah Biddle, of Adams county, to Miss Sarah A. B., only daughter of Isaac Worley, Esq., of York County.

Miss Susanna Klepper, both of Franklin township.

On the 5th inst., by Isaac Robinson, Esq., at Fairfield, Mr. William Sanders to Miss Lucinda Singley.

The Mummaburg Mutual Fire Protection Society, on the 14th of January, elected the following Directors for the present year:
Jesse D. Neuman, Mountjoy; Jacob E. Miller, Mountpleasant; Barnett Myers, Menallen; Tobias Boyer, Burkhardt Wert, John Eicholtz; William S. Hamilton and Jacob Wisler, Butler; Peter Shull, John Throne, Benjamin Deardorff, and George Throne, Franklin.

Died: On the 5th inst., Mrs. Hannah Mary Hollebaugh, wife of Mr. Zachariah Hollebaugh, of this place, aged 30 years.

On the 9th inst., Mr. Levi Crum, of Menallen township, aged about 75 years.

On the 7th inst., in Oxford township, Mrs. Mary Marshall, of Revolutionary memory, aged about 94 years.

On the 3d inst., in Franklin township, Mrs. Harriet, consort of Mr. Levi Pitzer, aged 37 years.

On the 4th inst., in Straban township, Mr. Adam Yeaggs, aged 84 years.

At York, on the 31st inst., Mrs. Elizabeth Cook, mother of Mr. S. G. Cook, of this place, aged 73 years.

On the 5th inst., Mr. Abraham Stonesifer, aged 88 years.

On the 8th inst., Mr. David Sell, aged 49 years.

On Thursday evening last, in this place, Mr. Henry Saltzger, aged 48 years.

On the 10th inst., Howard Augustus, son of George C. and Sophia J. Hartzell, aged 5 months.

On the 12th inst., John Clark, only son of Philip and Margaret Sillik, of Menallen township, aged 5 years.

The returns from Virginia show that the state has gone for the Union by an overwhelming majority—not more than thirty secessionists being chosen in the whole state. The Richmond Whig publishes a list of the delegates, with the remark that "probably nine-tenths of them cordially approve of the final effort to restore the Union and the Constitution, in the spirit in which they were established by the fathers of the Republic, now progressing at Washington. Unconditional 'unionists' and extremists on the other side will constitute very small proportions of the convention.

EDGAR A. GUEST

THE STRANGE ANSWER
Friends there were who came and said:

"Why so fearful now?
There is nothing left to dread.
Fame has crowned your brow.

"You have left your cares behind.
Whoso'er you go
Pleasure only shall you find,
Never need or woe.

"Never more need you endure
Winter's bitter cold,
Safe and certain and secure
Are the joys you hold."

Strange the answer that he made:
"Peace is but a lure!
I would rather be afraid
Than be safe and sure.

"Now my troubles disappear
As I look ahead
Under skies forever clear.
Idleness I dread."

ON GOING SOUTH
FOR THE WINTER.

The rich from winter's rage have fled,
To lands where skies are soft and blue
And blossoms deck the paths they tread,
The rich will laugh and winter through.

I sit within my sheltered nook
And watch the snow drifts piling high.
As through my window pane I look
I see the poor go trudging by.

Upon the corner of the street
I see an old man brave the storm
And rub his ears and stamp his feet,
Struggling to keep his body warm.

And this I think: the rich can buy
The warmth they need all winter long.
They do not need a sunny sky,
Their coats are stout, their shoes are strong.

'Tis strange that they should run away
To lands where gentle breezes blow.
It is the rich who ought to stay,
It is the poor who ought to go.

Today's Talk

By George Mathew Adams

FRIENDS, RATHER THAN—

THERE is a worth about friends that is often intangible. We visit here and there. We grow restless and seek out new scenes and faces—but, in a most mysterious manner, we are always led back to that corner of the earth where our friends mostly are.

No matter how glorious the sea, or the wild, or the stir of the city, the quietest, smallest, most undistinguished spot—where our friends are to be found—is the most beloved, and the one to which we are drawn as though by a magnet.

It's friends, rather than money, display, grandeur, or excitement, that breed beauty and solace to the soul, and give to it both life and substance.

It is surprising, however, how few friends we really need. Of course, a great many are to be welcomed, but the little handful—the faithful few, who remain forever, "without capitulation," are the ones whom we warm within our hearts, and stick to through thick and thin.

What a primer of friendship is the beloved dog! That is the one thing that crowns his life—faithfulness and loyalty to his master or friend. No matter how severely he is reprimanded at times, no matter how unjustly he is dealt with, no matter how little he is given in return for his all, superbly faithful and loyal he remains to the end.

There is nothing quite so tragic as the breaking of a long friendship. Better to keep a friend and lose the froth of wealth, power, or acclaim. Nothing can quite compensate for the loss of a genuine friend.

I have seen the quick shift of friends just the moment that fortune smiled—but just let that fortune slip suddenly away—and how stranded becomes that individual who sacrificed so dearly!

It's friends, rather than anything else in all this world, who kindle the warm fires of the heart, and who give to life's retreating years its choicest and most treasured hours.

Easy cutting, easy sewing—all this and more you'll learn from the diagrammed Marian Martin sew chart included with this pattern, which shows you how quickly sleeves and yoke may be cut in one piece, the way yoke and bodice are joined, waist darts run up and, in fact, the finishing of every last detail. Then comes the best part of all—the trimming, and what fun it is to sew a bit of contrasting or self ruffling along the edges of sleeves and pockets for a very dainty and feminine effect. 130,000 Are Caught in Jam
As Olympic Contests Close

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 17 (AP)—Two persons were hurt, several fainted and a number were bruised and scratched Sunday in a milling crowd which the Nazi Labor Service corps kept in the Olympic ski stadium for more than two hours until Reichsführer Adolph Hitler and other high officials departed.

A crowd of 130,000 persons shoved and screamed in attempting either to see the German leaders or to get out.

Nazis in uniform kept the crowd in the seats or narrow passageways, locking their arms in solid phalanxes. Frequently they started a concerted push inward against the throng, many of whom were standing ankle deep in mud.

Black Shirts Guard Streets
Streets were guarded by Black Shirts during Hitler's arrival and departure. He was accompanied by Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Minister of Air, and Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, his two chief lieutenants.

Visitors in the stadium, many of whom had their clothing torn, were told flatly they would have to remain until those on duty were ready to let them through.

Garmisch, normally housing only a few thousand souls, was inundated by a torrent of humanity. Its winding streets were clogged and overflowing with humanity from daylight until long after dark. The thousands who waded through the mud of the thawing streets to witness the ski jump at the edge of town in the morning were marooned there until the closing exercises tonight. There wasn't a chance of hewing a path from there to the ice stadium for the hockey game in the afternoon.

Wait Hours to See Hitler
Hitler, Goebbels and their official party were believed to have been alone in making the round trip. Throughout the day the two-mile route from the ski stadium to the railway station was banked on both sides four and five deep with those hoping only for a glimpse of Hitler.

FIND BLAZING BODY
IN DITCH BY ROADSIDE

Younestown, Ohio, Feb. 17 (AP).—An autolite discovered the blazing body of a man in a roadside ditch near the Younstown Country Club Sunday.

The victim had been shot in the head and neck. Kerosene had been poured over the body and set afire.

This story will interest many Men and Women

NOT long ago I was like some friends I have...low in spirits...run-down...out of sorts...tired easily and looked terrible. I knew I had no serious organic trouble so I reasoned sensibly...as my experience has since proven...that work, worry, colds and whatnot had just worn me down.

The confidence mother has always had in S.S.S. Tonic...which is still her stand-by when she feels run-down...convinced me I ought to try this Treatment...I started a course. The color began to come back to my skin...I felt better...I did not tire so easily and soon I felt that those red-blood-cells were back to so-called fighting strength...it is great to feel strong again and like my old self.

Insist on S.S.S. Tonic in the blood-red Cellophane-wrapped package...the big 20-oz. size is sufficient for two weeks' treatment...it's more economical, too.

Maroons Battle Hanover Tuesday
Gettysburg high school's court team will resume its quest of the 1936 championship of the Southern Pennsylvania interscholastic league Tuesday evening, when it meets Hanover high, at Hanover.

Stopped by Carlisle high Friday evening after a nine-game winning streak, the Maroons will put forth their best efforts to inaugurate a new winning streak.

Hanover gave the Forney-men a hard battle in their meeting here on January 23, with the Maroons winning out by rallying in the second half. The final score was 36-27.

Although the Maroons played far below par at Carlisle, Coach Forney expects to have his aggregation clicking at top speed when they line up for the game Tuesday night. No change is anticipated in the line-up which will be selected from Guise, Stuck, Dutler, Lefever, Everhart, Plantz, Little, Jones and Sachs.

A preliminary game between the reserve teams will be played at 7:15 o'clock.

TOWN ISOLATED FOR ONE MONTH

Food Rationed Out to Humans and Animals; Fuel Is at a Premium.

Hatfield, Mo., Feb. 17 (AP)—The fewer than 200 inhabitants of Hatfield know from first hand experience the deprivations of the pioneers.

For a month snow drifts as deep as twenty feet have locked the Northwestern Missouri community from the outside world, isolated it as a world unto itself.

The consolidated school has been closed for thirty days. The children couldn't get through the snow.

Coal gave out three weeks ago. Families got out the kerosene stoves, generally used for summer cooking. Then the kerosene gave out. They turned to chopped wood. Later old buildings were razed. Now they are cutting down trees for fuel.

Food Supplies Low
Without a railroad and off the main highway, Hatfield had to rely on home canned goods and the supplies at Charley Jones' big store.

Jones has to limit each family to twenty-five cents worth of sugar and a twenty-four pound sack of flour. His supplies are low.

Even the feed for 500 cattle had

Berlin Pastor, Part Jew, Defies Nazis By Preaching Under Guard

Berlin, Feb. 17 (AP)—Protected by fifty pastors wearing black robes, the Rev. Mr. Jacoby, who is under fire because he is a quarter-Jew, defied Nazi threats Sunday night and preached his scheduled sermon in Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial church, one of Berlin's largest.

Pastors of all Confessional Synod churches (the Confessional Synod is opposing the Nazi church regime) lined up on either side of the pulpit as the sermon was delivered. An extra police cordon stood outside of the jammed church.

Pastor Jacoby completed his sermon with the statement: "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

Despite the fact that the official ban against his preaching had been lifted Pastor Jacoby received threats from Nazi organizations that if he attempted to speak again it would be regarded as a political act.

Hans Kerl, Nazi minister for church affairs, was understood to have been among those who sent word to Pastor Jacoby not to occupy his pulpit again.

One reason the fifty pastors turned out to form a veritable body-guard for their colleague was an attack in Reichsfuhrer Hitler's Volkischer Beobachter February 12.

The newspaper accused Pastor Jacoby of preaching February 9 for the first time in a long while, and then, the paper said, "instead of turning over the collection to the authorized authorities (meaning Kerl's committee for church affairs), he gave it to the emergency fund (of the Confessional Opposition Synod)."

LEAGUE MOVES TO NEW HOME

Famed World Group Occupies $10,000,000 Palace, Outside Geneva.

Geneva Feb. 17 (AP)—The League of Nations moved today into its new $10,000,000 palace, a gleaming mass of white stone which stands impressively on the slopes of Lake Geneva.

This palace, which represents the greatest architectural effort perhaps since the World War, rivals the historic chateau of Versailles in size.

The "International White House" occupies a magnificent site. It dominates the lake and look upon the glittering, snow-capped Alps, including Monte Blanc on the opposite shore, and on the other side faces the long range of the French Jura Mountains.

$25,000 Cost of Moving
Moving involves the transportation of 600 tons of records at a cost of $25,000.

One criticism already voiced of the League's new home is that it stands too far outside the city of Geneva. Disputes between architects of various nations caused lengthy delays in the building's completion.

It is not completed and the assembly chamber will not be ready for the assembly meeting in September. The library, to which John D. Rockefeller, Jr. donated $2,000,000, cannot be opened for six weeks.

Four Buildings
The palace is really composed of several buildings. One long wing contains the secretariat, another the council hall, a third the library and a fourth the great assembly hall.

The buildings have their frontage on a central court of horseshoe shape facing the lake.

The large central assembly hall is the most imposing section of the edifice. It will be used not only for League assemblies but also for other international conferences of the League of Nations and of the International Labor organization.

Room for 600 Officials
The central portion of the hall has room for 300 delegates for 200 experts and secretaries of delegations and for 100 League officials. There are galleries to accommodate some 200 official guests and for the public and others with room for 500 newspaper men.

The library is designed to hold 2,000,000 volumes.

Some idea of the immense size of the palace is had by a few figures. There are about 900 offices and other rooms, 1,700 doors and the same number of windows. There are 21 elevators either for passengers or for goods. There are 1,900 radiators with a total heating service of about 12,000 square yards.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR NATURAL "BULK"

Needed to Correct Constipation*

Most people recognize the seriousness of constipation. But too often they dose themselves with strong cathartics that often actually lead to chronic constipation.

The natural way to check common constipation is to correct the condition which causes it—usually, insufficient "bulk" in meals.

How can you get "bulk"? Fruits and vegetables have some. Bran has more. The most popular product of this kind is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

This delicious cereal is a wholesome food. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity, with milk or cream—or use in cooking.

Two tablespoonsfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will usually correct constipation due to insufficient "bulk." If not relieved, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN gives you gentle internal exercise. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SEEK YOUTH FOR KILLING FATHER

Police Suspect 15-Year-Old Boy as Hidden Gunman in Reading Shooting.

Reading, Feb. 17 (AP)—A burst of gunfire fatally wounded James Toontas, 45, an automobile mechanic, near his home early Sunday and police sought his 15-year-old son, Louis, for questioning in the slaying over a wide area in Eastern Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.

Toontas was shot as he climbed out of his automobile parked near his home shortly after midnight. He had been called away earlier on an emergency job. Police were told by witnesses that as Toontas walked toward the front door several shots rang out.

Flee in Automobile
As the father fell, struggled to his feet and collapsed again police say they were informed, the assailant leaped into Toontas' automobile and fled.

Ten minutes before he died in the Homeopathic hospital, Lieut. Detective Charles Dentith says, Toontas murmured:
"My son Louis did it. He laid in wait for me."

Toontas' wife, Sarah, his daughters, Dianna 23, Anna 22, Beatrice 19 and Pauline 17, were in the house at the time. The girls came running from the house and helped take their parent to the hospital.

Find Stalled Car
Tonight Toontas' automobile was located stalled along the Pottsville pike, near Shoemakersville. Police immediately placed a guard over it until fingerprints can be taken.

Mrs. Toontas is unwilling to believe her son shot his father, but she could not explain his absence from their home.

"He was a quiet boy," she said. "He seldom had anything to say and never gave us any trouble. I know of no reason why he should have shot his father."

Supervised by Western Union observer, timers with stop watches clocked the elapsed time between the push on the starter and the firing of the motor.
